Cop ruling may get appeal

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Sgt. James Reader, against whom an allegation of cheating on a promotion exam was dismissed last August, was found guilty in the hearing held here Tuesday night on three of five charges in connection with his absence from work in October 1987.

After deliberating for an hour, the board imposed two-day suspension. The Police Department had sought a 30-day suspension.

Regarding the disciplinary action, Reader's lawyer, James Gomric, said the decision would be appealed.

"We believe the record will show that the charges were not substantiated," Gomric said. He promised to show a transcript of the nearly five-hour hearing "to anyone who wants to see it."

The hearing, which was closed to the public except for family and press, had been continued from Feb. 27. A total of seven charges had been brought in December 1987. When the hearing began last week, two charges had been dropped. The board ruled that Reader failed to report an absence from work in October 1987 in the manner prescribed by a departmental standard. He misled superiors about the reason for his absence from work; and was "evasive, disrespectful and deceitful" toward his superior when questioned about the absence.

Official misconduct allegations also were dismissed last August against Sgt. David Rosenberg and Alderman Dan Partney, who helped administer the promotion test in 1985 when Partney was a member of the fire and police commission.

The case was referred to the state's attorney's request after a judge's pretrial ruling that the test scores could not be used as evidence. Both men scored more than 140 points on the 150-point test. The next highest score in the nation was 117, it was determined.

Reader is the only one of the three who has not filed suit against city officials. Partney filed a $2 million lawsuit against Mayor Von Dee Cruse and attorney John Hopkins.

Pontoon purchases ground; bank leasing adjacent site

By Valerie Evenden

PONTOON BEACH — Purchase by the village of a three-acre parcel of land from Omni Bank was concluded at Tuesday night's meeting of the Board of Trustees.

Lots at the corner of Illinois 111 and Englewood Road, the property was the proposed construction site for the new Omni Bank in the Chouteau Trace I development.

However, sale of the property doesn't mean the Pontoon Beach bank will get new land. Loren Wilson, president of the bank, said bank officials have agreed to lease an adjacent three-acre parcel of land owned by the village on which the new bank building will be constructed, Wilson said.

The new site to be leased by Omni Bank has 262 feet of frontage on Illinois 111, Mary Warren, village clerk, said.

The property cost the village $68,901 and has 500 feet along Engineer Road and 278 feet of frontage on Illinois 111.

Final plans are being made with a business firm to lease the corner property from the village, Warren said.

A third three-acre lot on Illinois 111, south of the property to be leased by the bank, also is owned by the village. The third lot borders the commercial zoning of Chouteau Trace I, Warren said.

In action Tuesday night, the latest recording ordinance was amended to add $1,401 to the original price of $67,500 for interest and closing costs.

Voting against the measure were Trustees Loren Madison and Don Rea, who also cast negative votes on purchasing the land from the bank at the original price.

Three school districts considering cutbacks

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

VENICE — A public hearing will be held at 7 tonight on the honorable dismissal of about 20 School District 3 employees, including teachers and non-certified service employees.

Hearings have been set in two other local school districts, though the formal actions are still underway.

The Venice action is being taken due to 1989-90 financial uncertainties. The employees could be rehired before next fall if adequate funds become available.

A resolution on the dismissals was read by the school board Feb. 27 and awaits approval following the hearing.

Sgt. Mike Bilbrey asked that the resolution also include non-certified service personnel as well as teachers, who he said, is now required to give them the same advance notice, he said.

The Illinois School Code requires a public hearing for teacher dismissal when the proposed number "exceeds five, or 15 percent of the average number of teachers normally dismissed in the preceding three years, whichever is greater." The code requires a majority vote to approve such a discharge.

"We do not have the knowledge of funding we are going to receive, particularly in regard to the Lincoln Technical Center," Bilbrey said. "If we didn't have enough money, we would hire back some of these same teachers."

Last year, the district honorably dismissed 20 teachers for the 1988-89 school year. All of those teachers were rehired by early summer.

Superintendent Charles McCaskill has said that about 20 dismissals are expected to be needed again this year. No breakdown of the 20 has been given.

The district employs 45 teachers of Venice Federation of Teachers Local 965 and 14 service workers.

"We got an earlier notice than we had anticipated last year that we were going to have the funds," McCaskill said. "We want to think positively, and hope that everything turns out like last year."

The dismissal notice is basically a pre-emptive measure taken every year by the district, which relies heavily on state and federal funding, McCaskill said.

Almost all of the programs at the Technical Center receive state or federal aid as do the Chapter 1 programs at Venice Grade School, McCaskill said.

The Madison and Granite City school districts have also stated similar public hearings.

In Granite City, a public hearing has been set for 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 28.

In Madison, a public hearing has been set for 6:30 p.m. Friday, March 17. Superintendent Dan Kostenski said that program cuts are currently being explored but have not been completely determined as a result, he did not yet have a specific number of employees who would receive notification.

District 12 will have programs eliminated, with some jobs being lost, he said.

"We are genuinely planning to have cutbacks," Kostenski said. "Cutbacks will be based on what programs will be offered."

The Madison budget changes will help remove the district from the Illinois State Board of Education's "financial watch" list. Madison was among 190 school systems placed on the list in February.

Protested tax plan now being studied

By Valerie Evenden

PONTOON BEACH — Ordinances relating to creation of the previously protested Timberlake Tax Increment Financing District, and Redevelopment Plan are being reviewed again.

Village Clerk Mary Warren said Wednesday she has no information when the ordinances will be reintroduced for consideration at the next meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 14.

A total of 111 private residences and commercial businesses is planned for the Timberlake subdivision in Pontoon Beach, where the 63-acre-plus TIF redevelopment project is proposed.

The Timberlake property is vacant farmland on the west side of Illinois 111 and north of the Church of the Nazarene in the 4700 block of the highway.

Estimated cost of the redevelopment is $25,100,000 with the proposal to have financing through non-general-obligation bonds underwritten by the developers at no cost to the village, Warren said. The bonds would finance demolition of streets and utilities and meet other development costs in the area.

Vigorous protests about the Timberlake TIF proposal were heard at a public meeting in March and December last year.

At the December hearing, questions were asked and objections were heard from representatives of the Pontoon Beach School District, Long Lake Fire Protection District and Mitchell Fire Protection District.

The March hearing had been adjourned without being taken when the Long Lake Fire District objected, stating notification to the district was incomplete.

The impact of a large housing development on the property without a subsequent increase in tax dollars to finance necessary services was noted by Long Lake and Mitchell fire district representatives.

In a meeting at the Decembere meeting, Norman S. Owca, Granite City School District director of finance, told the Board of Education has not taken an official position for or against TIF districts in downtown Granite City or Chouteau Trace I or II.

The proposed Timberlake TIF District, however, has given the board cause for concern, Owca said, citing a projected increase in tax rates in the community without additional property tax money to finance education.

When tax increment financing is used to pay for development, among the parties most affected is the school district, which could be denied some or all of the additional money generated by developments in a TIF area for as long as 23 years, Owca said.

TIF districts enable new tax revenues generated by real estate taxes within the district to be used to repay TIF bonds.

Community residents pay taxes for over one-third of the cost of educating each child in the area.

Prather's principal resigns after a year

GRANITE CITY — Gail Eble has resigned from her post as Prather School principal for personal reasons effective at the end of the school year.

Her resignation was accepted by the school board following an executive session of more than an hour at Tuesday night's meeting.

District 9 Superintendent Gib Walmsley said that Eble "did not resign under duress" and that he had first heard about the matter on Tuesday.

Eble came to District 9 at this school year from the Southwestern School system in Brighton, Walmsley said.

Walmsley echoed Walmsley's comments, saying that her resignation was based on a personal decision.

She said she did not wish to comment on the nature of her decision or on her future plans at this time.

Walmsley said a new principal for Prather would be named sometime this summer.

The former junior high school now houses kindergarten through sixth-grade students.

All those who have filed petitions seeking office in the Chouteau Township races should win election without much difficulty April 4 — there are no challengers.

All have filed as members of the Continued Action Party. Unless a write-in campaign is waged, the following will be the placeholders:

State Rep.: Morris Miles (incumbent), 118 Kinder Lane, Mitchell.

The vice president of marketing at Pepsi-Cola's Alton Bottling Co. has been township supervisor for a number of years. He and his wife Joann have two grown children. He is also a member of the Madison County Board and a Democratic precinct committeeman.

He has lived here for 36 years. A native of Darien, Clements (incumbent), 57 Moorland Drive, Mitchell, Clements, 49, and his wife, Margaret, have three children. He has been a resident of the area for 26 years.

He is a district sales manager for U.S. Auto Glass in Belleville. Town clerk Patricia Polley (incumbent), 532 Thorngate Drive, is a widow, residing in the area for 32 years. She and her husband Robert have three grown children.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When an individual is involved in an automobile accident and his car is "totaled"; the question arises as to how much the insurance company will pay for his vehicle. He may look to his own insurance company to pay for the car, or to the other driver's company if that party is at fault.

In this situation, an insurance company is only obligated to pay "book value" for the vehicle. Often an individual whose car has been "totaled" feels his vehicle is worth more than the company offers. In many cases, the owner of the vehicle will owe more to a bank or other lending institution than the present "book value" of the car. This is because automobiles depreciate rapidly, and the loan balance often exceeds the present value of the car.

Some owners of vehicles complain that they had special features on their car and that the insurance company's estimate does not take into account these items. Others feel it is unfair that the company deducts from its estimate for prior damage to the car. In one recent case, an owner of a car was struck by a truck in an intersection collision. The truck driver was at fault in the accident, but that driver was uninsured. The car was "totaled" in this collision.

The driver of the car looked to his own insurance company in this case. The owner of the automobile owed $4,500 at the bank as a payoff on his car loan. The "book value" of the car, however, was only $3,200. Therefore, the car owner had to pay $1,300 out of pocket to pay off the balance of the loan.

Couple returns from Hawaii

LeRoy and Shirley Stark of Marion Road have returned from a trip to the Hawaiian Islands. The trip was to celebrate the couple's 25th wedding anniversary and to mark the passing of 40 years since Stark was discharged from the Air Force there in 1949.

He had been stationed in the Hawaiian Islands during World War II, from 1943 to 1945, in charge. He worked in Pearl Harbor, in Oahu, and had spent time in Guam and Japan on assignments.

On the Isle of Oahu, the Starks visited the Arizona Memorial and the Punch Bowl Memorial, where many World War II heroes are buried. They toured the Dole Pineapple plantation and cannery, now largely owned by country singer Kenny Rogers.

They also visited the Boy Scout offices in Honolulu and enjoyed a luau at Paradise Cove.

Following a five-day stay on Oahu, the Starks flew to the Big Island of Hawaii. There they took a daytime tour around the island, including stops at Jimmy's Ranch, the Pu'uhonua O Honaunau National Park, National Volcano Park, Black Sand Beach, Punalu'u and the Kona Forest. They also viewed fields of sugar cane and pineapples, and a coffee plantation.

Hawaii is the only state in the union to grow coffee. The travelers were privileged to sample a cup of Kona Coffee on the island where it was grown.

IT CAN BE PAINLESS THRU

ACTIVATOR METHODS CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS

A majority of people have the misconception that Chiropractic Care must be painful. You are "bent in the shape of a pretzel" to spend hours in a chair. The Only Certified Activator Method Practitioner, Dr. Mark J. Eavenson, is now using this method with outstanding results.

This method consists of adjustments to the spine using a small hand-held instrument. The instrument is a new concept in hand-held adjusting devices. It is used to deliver a quick, light, forceful, controlled, high, fast thrust without undue strain or force to the patient. The thrust delivered by the instrument helps the body reduce the spine misalignment thus alleviating the irritation to the spinal nerves, and allows the body to operate more efficiently and more comfortably.

Former Madison resident Stan Howlett looks back on a life that has included a ring bout with Sonny Liston, instructing Japanese to fellow steel mill workers and spreading the word of God

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

George Smith, a lifelong resident of Madison, remembers Stan Howlett as "exemplary in school, a good student." Smith, now director of the West Madison Recreation Center, was the principal of Dunbar School five decades ago.

Stan Howlett, now 60, was smart all right. Smart enough to spot a scam. Smart enough to recognize the implications of the scam. It came to him in a flash. He was a master of the art of the patch of light and noise and smoke they call "the squared circle."

On Sept. 15, 1954, in a six-round heavyweight boxing match at the St. Louis Arena, Howlett fought Sonny Liston, who later became the heavyweight champion of the world.

A knockout artist, "Slugger Stan" brought a 10-0 professional record to the ring. He had won the heavyweight division of the St. Louis Golden Gloves in 1950, '51 and '52 and was looking step up. Liston stood in his way.

"He had been my sparring partner," Howlett says of Liston. "I knew all his tricks, what he could do and couldn't do."

He remembers, and others also recall, how he pounded Liston until the ring gowned and batted him mercilessly, remembers beating Liston. He remembers the crowd howling his name while he waited for the decision.

He remembers the ring announcer's words as the crowd as the man looked at the judges' cards, then conferred with them to make sure they hadn't made a mistake.

The crowd howled its disdain at the decision. Howlett turned his back on boxing forever.

Howlett believes the winner was decided before he ever stepped into the ring that night, determined by kickers.

Years later, after taking the title from Floyd Patterson and then losing it to Cassius Clay, Liston was found dead of an overdose of heroin. His associates maintain Liston hated drugs.

It has been said since then that Liston had been saying things about certain people. It has been suggested that the fatal syringe was injected by the sort of people who could stand to gain by fixing fights and stand to lose if Liston talked to the wrong people.

Howlett sensed something was very wrong that night, something he didn't know or part of. "I felt that if they could take that fight from me after I had won, then this was no way for me to be spending my life," he says today. "It really frightened me."

He retired with a 74-13 lifetime record.

Stan Howlett became a preacher. He is the pastor of the 900-member True Light Baptist Church in St. Louis.

He did graduate work in psychology. You might say he traded his sweet science of boxing for behavioral science.

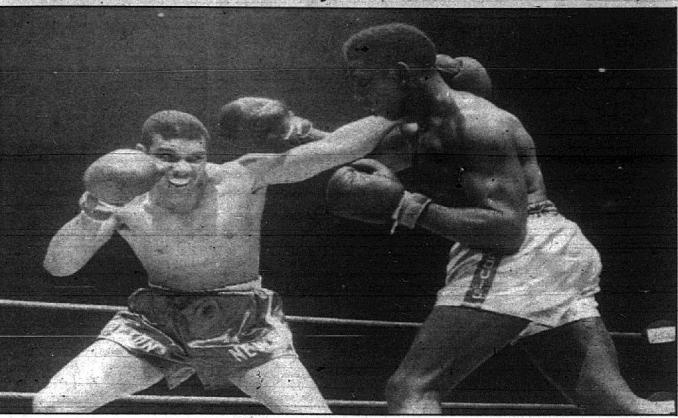

He held several positions in employee relations during a 20-year career at Granite City Steel.

While stationed in Japan during an Army stint, he learned Japanese. Later, he taught a course in Japanese to employees of the steel mill after Nippon Kokan Steel Co. of Japan purchased a 50-percent interest in National Steel, Granite City Steel's parent company.

Today, he runs Howlett and Associates Inc. of Hamel, Ill. He and his 22 associate employees provide spiritual and management companies, teaching them how to improve profits by learning how to get along with each other. The company is franchised by Psychological Associates Inc., of St. Louis, which has 250 franchises worldwide.

Howlett said he is the "only black in the world" certified and franchised by Psychological Associates.

His client list includes his former employer, Granite City Steel, and the Granite City Public School System, National Steel of Pittsburgh, Laclede Steel of Alton, Ralston Purina, Elmhurst Medical Center, Memorial Hospital in Alton, the Internal Revenue Service, and dozens of others.

The jargon of what Howlett does for a living can be complicated. It's called "dimensional training." What it's down to is helping his clients' employees understand the basic motivations of themselves and their co-workers. In intensive three-day seminars, Howlett and his associates teach participants to be more cooperative at work.

Howlett said there's a real bottom line to all this:

"It reduces the hidden costs that firms pay for poor behavior in the workplace, the conflict between workers that results in production slowdowns, behavioral strife that results in poor information flow, lack of collaboration and suppressed creativity."

He says low productivity is often the result of "people problems rather than technological problems."

Howlett says dimensional training has strong parallels to spirituality and Biblical reading.

He has developed an adjunct to dimensional training aimed at religious workers, both clergy and laypeople, to teach them to be more effective at imparting their message. He is almost finished with a book on the subject.

He offers the example of Cain killing Abel.

"It was the result of a failure to communicate effectively," he says. "Whether we want to promote organizational cost effectiveness or a broader spiritual life, the dimensional models make a difference in what we can achieve."

Howlett, at 6-2 and 275 pounds, is a ham-fisted but gentle giant. His moon-shaped face cast in a perpetual half-smile, he speaks softly and deliberately, with a slight lisp. He uses the same language as his students: discussing business, the Bible or the brutal art of breaking ribs.

"Jack Dempsey taught me how to break ribs. I got pretty proficient at that," he says, smiling.

His voice picks up just a little intensity when he talks about people who influenced him.

Jay and Eloise Simpson, for instance, at whose Granite City restaurant he worked while in his teens, and an elderly woman.

A familiar theme is evident.

"They helped adjust me to interacting with people. They reduced my racial self-consciousness. They were loving people, they were tough on me. They tried to teach me as if I were one of their own."

"That's why they live in my memory. I look at it as God giving them to me to help me find my way."

Also remembered with fondness are Mr. and Mrs. James Alcott. He was the president of First National Bank in Madison and helped Howlett during his boxing days.

"He used to lend me money, and she gave me a lot of moral support."

When Mrs. Alcott was buried, she wore a pendant around her neck, a gift from Howlett. It was a prize from his profit-sharing days, a miniature golden globe studded with diamonds.

"She meant that much to me," he says solemnly.

Recalling Howlett as a youth, George Smith says he is not surprised that he has become successful. He is local lawyer Gil Rosch, who used to watch Howlett fight.

"A great guy," Rosch said. "Straight, religious — and a tremendous fighter."

Bob Fox, 62, of St. Louis, who fought on the same Golden Gloves team years ago, says simply: "You can only say good things about him."

"He's a acclaim and success have come to Stan. Howlett's daughter, Diane, was killed in a car accident in her first year of college. He remembers it vividly: 'On Jan. 11, 1971, at 8:20 in the morning.'

Son Rodney is a vice president of Howlett and Associates and also works at Granite City Steel as a metallurgical inspector. Daughter Kathy is a legal secretary.

Wife Catherine is a homemaker — possibly the only housewife to play a trade usually practiced by types who spit cigar smoke and profanity in equal amounts.

"She was my (fight) manager," Howlett said, the omnivorous crescent of a smile lighting up his face.

Today, Howlett is too busy with church and business to look back, to dwell on what might have been. But if you press him, he will confess he has on occasion regretted one thing.

"When I last fought Cassius Clay (and lost), I felt I could have done a better job."

Advice on the subject of vice

I'm no fan of John Tower's, but it seems to me that if it's not confirmed as defense secretary, it will be for all the wrong reasons: his alleged "womanizing" and abuse of alcohol.

Don't assume I'm not in favor of having a drunk for defense secretary. After all, his counsel would be taken into consideration by the president in a nuclear crisis.

I'd rather not have such a person smashed on gin when hard decisions must be made. He could be feeling a tad belligerent.

"Well, Mr. President, we're not absolutely sure those blips on the radar ain't just swamp gas, but what the heck, let's make it. Lesh givin' anudder chance."

Or, he could be too mellow: "Shucks, George ol' buddy. What's this itty bitty ol' city or two? Ah'm sure they didn't morn it. Lesh givin' anudder chance."

Tower, desperate to be confirmed, has sworn off the booze forever. I'm not sure if he has sworn off women. Just say no, John.) If so, I say! Greater love hath no man for his country.

But, personally, I'd feel a lot more comfortable with Tower as defense secretary if he didn't have such close ties to defense contractors. If he had learned to "just say no" to large sums of money he accepted as a consultant to a couple of defense contractors.

All that aside, what bothers me about the Tower debate is how it is reflective of the new Puritanical mood in this country. A mood that I don't see. It seems to me, because present and prospective public officials are being held to a higher standard than the common man in the exception of baseball players.

Under moral standards being applied today, a substantial number of our men revered historians like would be denied the opportunity to serve. Benjamin Franklin had mistresses on two continents and made no bones about his appreciation for the flesh. There is some evidence, too, that John F. Kennedy carried on with women other than Jackie while in the White House.

Ulysses S. Grant was a drinker of literally "staggering" proportions while leading the Union forces in the Civil War. Apprised of this fact, President Abraham Lincoln is said to have replied along these lines: "Find out what brand he drinks, and we'll make all our generals drink it." Grant later became president, of course.

What I want to know is, why should a person be denied a position for moral reasons? What do these persons' perceived failings have to do with their ability to do the job?

John Tower had a distinguished career of public service to his state and nation. At a particular point in history, was he smashed all that time? Was he all alone "impaired by alcohol," as they can nowadays?

Willie Bennett, Bush's new drug czar, recently quit smoking cigarettes after the question was raised whether it was appropriate for a nicotine addict to head that agency.

What on earth does Bill Bennett's smoking or not smoking have to do with his ability to stem the flow of illegal drugs into this country? I mean, that has nothing to do with his ability to do the job, but everything to do with the neo-Puritan ethic that is taking America by the throat.

Prohibition, which enriched organized crime and corrupted public officials, should have taught us the impossibility of legislating morality. Instead, under pressure from moral interest groups, the nation seems to be tending inexorably toward other Prohibitions.

We will be at all surprised to see adults outlawed again soon. Then it will be cigarettes. Next year, booze and MTV.

We can't forget, morality is an individual thing. We are, very, very careful about stepping over the line between laws that make society function in greater harmony and laws that only suit our own individual notions of how people should conduct their lives.

Consider this: Iran thinks itself a moral country. As leader demands a man to death for writing a book.

Perhaps censorship will be the next step an increasingly repressive America will take.

Ball to fund music scholarships

Friends of Music at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville are sponsoring the Viennese Ball, set for 6:30 p.m. Saturday, April 22, in SIUE's University Center.

The Friends of Music, a support group of the SIUE department of music, are raising funds to benefit music students at SIUE. Proceeds will be used to fund music scholarships. Reservations for the ball must be made by March 15.

The Viennese Ball was suggested by Ron Abraham, assistant professor of vocal music. "The talents of the students and faculty within the department of music are raise money for the scholarship fund," Abraham said. "It is an excellent idea, however. The first time I encountered a Viennese Ball was at the University of Wisconsin, Eau Claire, where they've been doing it for 16 years."

PTA hears works of young authors

The Marshall School PTA recently held its monthly meeting for library.

President Lisa Morian introduced Melvin Wilmsmeyer and Al Hudzik, executive officers of the Granite City Magazine, who distributed literature and spoke to PTA members about the Metro East Sanitary District flood protection election.

Members voted to purchase booklets titled "Your Child Entering School" to present to parents during kindergarten orientation. The dates for the spring semester fund sale were announced as March 18 and the school picnic will be May 26.

Following the meeting, five of the six state winners of the "Young Authors" competition read their stories. They were:

Second-grader Leah Gamblin with "The Little Lost Puppy"; third-grader Scott Monell with "Our Best Friends" and Jessica Garrison with "Grandpa, My Best Friend"; fifth-grader Mandy Miller with "The Rainbow Chase"; and sixth-grader Matt Vollmar with "Sir Cedars Quest". Fourth-grader Autumn Byrd was ill and unable to attend.

The stories will be judged at the district level in March.

The Marshall PTA's next meeting is scheduled at 7 p.m. March 13.

Financial aid deadline set

Students planning to attend Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville during the 1989-90 school year are advised that the preferential filing date for campus-based financial aid is April 1.

The deadline is a month earlier than in previous years. John Jennette, director of the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance, said.

Program affected by the deadline include College Work Study, Perkins Loan, Student-to-Student Grant, and the Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant. Applications received after April 1 will still be considered subject to the availability of funds.

To apply for financial aid, students are required to complete the American College Testing-Scholarly Financial Aid Application. Students should complete this form as soon as possible to ensure that after processing the university can receive it by the deadline, Jennette said.

Financial aid packets and application forms are available by writing the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance, SIUE Box 1060, Edwardsville 62025 or by calling 692-3880.

Air purity essential to area

Particulars have been part of the Metro East air pollution problem for a number of years, with a monitoring station near Granite City Steel often being recorded as the place with the "dirtiest air in Illinois."

Now, Granite City Steel is being cited in a state report as one of the chief industries emitting such potentially harmful chemicals as benzene and naphthalene.

The word "potentially" is used because the volume determines the possible dangers of various substances. But the amounts cited here and in other communities justify intense study by a number of manufacturers and other interested parties.

Statewide, it would be easy for laymen to conclude that far too many toxic chemicals are being released into the air, landfills, waterways and treatment plants. Precisely how to drastically reduce such hazards without crippling the companies that are involved remains a difficult but essential task.

Air that is safe to breathe must be preserved.

Everett Morlen will be missed

Some people frankly didn't like Everett Morlen. But a whole lot more people did, most of them accepting him for the good alderman that he was. The cigar-chewing, hat-bearing Morlen died at the age of 82 on Monday night, and the city lost a fine public servant.

Granite City's senior alderman with 20 years on the council, Morlen was a crusty bird, prone to speaking his mind on subjects no matter if the chamber TV camera was directed his way or not. But he was also a man who stood on principle and got the job done where a lot of others didn't.

Police department members say Morlen represented their interests well as chairman of the city's police committee. City Clerk Bob Stevens said Morlen was in and out of his office sometimes twice daily. Those are laudatory comments from people who should know.

The 1st Ward has lost a good representative in the guy called "Cherry Picker." So has all of Granite City.

Pontoon criticism justified

Rules are made to be followed, fellas. That's why the next time Pontoon Beach village funds are used without prior approval, somebody other than the taxpayer should have to pay.

The recent renovation of the Pontoon Beach police station caused some debate among a couple of trustees who only learned of the work when they were asked to pay $428 for part of the expenses. That's a piddlin' amount, but on principle it doesn't matter.

The work, involving simple enclosure of the dispatching area, was needed. But certainly all trustees should have known about the project before they saw the bills.

Robert Abel, chairman of the police committee, took the heat, saying he failed to let other trustees know what was going on. At least someone took responsibility.

The problem was truly the only flaw in a nice little project. Police officers volunteered their time to work on the remodeling, some of them even donating personal money to help purchase and install a TV monitoring system to allow the dispatcher to see the entryway to the station.

Dispatcher safety is apt enough reason to remodel any police station. However, Pontoon Beach trustees, on the brink of many good years of progress, don't need to start factoring in or failing to communicate now.

Drug abuse can be resisted

DARE to say No.

DARE, an acronym for Drug Abuse Resistance Education, has been launched at Granite City public and parochial schools with solid support and high hopes. Something must be done to curb young people's drug involvement and this is a direct, community-based effort to do just that.

The preventive program utilizes specially-trained, uniformed police officers who teach a 17-week curriculum. The goal is to equip sixth-grade students with the skills to resist peer pressure to experiment with and use harmful drugs. Rather than scare tactics, the officers define "growing up" in a positive way, "making your own decisions and learning to face life's problems."

DARE was developed because of an alarming increase in drug use. Most Illinoisans who seek treatment for drug habits began their addiction as children. Resistance education focuses on:

• Providing accurate information on alcohol and drugs.

• Teaching students decision-making skills.

• Showing children how to resist peer pressure.

• Giving them ideas for alternatives to drug use.

Activity-oriented techniques encourage group discussions, exchanging of ideas and feelings, and role-playing exercises. Along with an hour of instruction once a week, the officer assigned to a school spends additional time chatting with pupils at lunch and recess. Parents, teachers and school administrators also can benefit; the instructor holds workshops on signs of drug abuse, how to intervene and where to seek assistance.

Cooperating in the program are Granite City schools and police, Illinois State Police, the Illinois State Board of Education and the Illinois Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse.

Cruse 'turns his back' on public

To the editor:

While attending a political meeting, I noticed that many present were supporters of the incumbent mayor four years ago began to reminisce why so many citizens wanted him gone. They want a change and are willing to work to upset the present administration.

Four years ago, Von Dee Cruse was a strong advocate of repealing the city utility franchise. In his administration, he had two opportunities to make campaign promise but turned his back on his constituents.

Four years ago, he promised the seniors that they could have office and storage space in the Town Hall. He did not keep his promise. Almost on the eve of election day the mayor is putting on a political show for the seniors with tokens of appreciation. One who trusted or is this an act to get the senior vote?"

When he was elected as mayor his salary was $28,000. He is now asking for a $47,000 annual salary. Who is he looking out for? He deserves an expense allowance and compensation for acting as liquor commissioner.

He has been so busy cutting ribbons that the city fathers employed an administrator to support the mayor and a downtown office to help revitalize the downtown business district. These salaries are big bucks and a burden on the taxpayer. What about a young man who works full time in Granite City and spends it somewhere else? Why not local jobs for local people? Are these some of the reasons why the tax rate in Granite City had to be raised?

A major bank is moving out of the downtown area and some automotive dealerships have indicated they will vacate from downtown. I have my own thoughts when I hear the Wal-Mart proposal. I remember the mayor's beautification tree planting program. I recall that approximately $37,000 was spent on planting trees in the heat of summer, trees that never took root due to lack of watering. Who paid for this mistake? A veto by the mayor would have saved the taxpayers some tax dollars.

The mayor sat by when the aldermen voted themselves a salary increase, 100 percent from $28,000 to $47,000 plus they topped off the political plum with a $1,200 expense account that does not have to be documented. Boy, what a a

The mayor had no reason to veto these increases; his salary was being raised. Aldermen are also paid for townships meetings they attend. Town meetings last about as long as an ice cube would fit in a cup of tea.

Let's not forget the three benefits our city fathers provided for themselves, like insurance and pension. Do we need a change? You bet we do.

Mayo Cruse is likely to claim credit for the new park plantings in March. I went to bed Sunday night ignoring the political talk. I awoke to knee-deep drifts and the 30 degree cold. Nature to showed a 150-foot drive-in had to tunnel through it again upon my return home just to repair the car. People must wonder how I got the heat-looking igloo along the house.

This kind of weather turns people crazy, including me.

Take the actual trip to the off-road drive with ice-edged wipers. It's also trying to get through stained glass at a cathedral. It's also fun bracing for an interstate spinout while your nose is glued to the window. Your eyes fix on solitary tracks left by that jackknifing four-wheel just ahead.

Some people take the easy way out and drive down the road with their head out the window, but me like a challenge.

And a word of advice for the uninitiated. "Stop" on a stop sign only means stop in warm weather. When the snow hits the same word goes through translation. "Stop" suddenly becomes "Outta my way, Mac! I can't stop this crazy jalopy!"

A final note. Footwear often doesn't hold up in winter. This wasn't without my problems Monday. The first half of the day, I wore these cute little rubber boots, which have always stayed put with me. My wife bought them for me. By midday, one had ripped in half, and my brown leather wingtip was sticking right through it. Rather than go to the store, I went home. I just told my wife I left them at work. Looking at my dripping soles, she just shook her head. After nine years of marriage, she has learned not to ask the obvious questions.

The present theme of the Postal Service "We deliver" is certainly in the minds of our employees, and I for one wish to say "Thanks."

Tax step backward for mothers

By Sylvia Porter
Staff affiliate

The Welfare Reform Act is now on our statute books. Welfare it is not — not for America's working mothers. Rather it is not — it's a step backward in the child care area. A law it is — with implications that affect all working mothers, working fathers, working couples, working parents. Overall, the law does not — and I mean not — contain good news.

To begin with, look at the effect for 1989 taxes. Suppose that you are one of the fortunate working mothers who has an employer considerate enough to offer a child care plan. Your employer agrees to reimburse you for child care expenses that you incur for the purpose of being able to go to work and earn a salary.

The good news here is that $3,000 is the limit for you, and $5,000 is the maximum amount the law permits you to exclude.

But suppose that your child care expenses are $9,800. You have one child in school and one still a toddler.

The good news for this year is that you can take a 20 percent dollar-for-dollar income tax credit on that excess $4,800. It is an extra $960 in your pocket.

However, under the law starting in 1989, if Kate gets $3,000 from her employer for child care expenses, none of her added $4,800 in expenses will be deductible for the credit. So Kate loses $960 in taxes. That's how much more she will be paying the government, reports tax attorney Eli J. Warner.

That's bad news. And it might even discourage some employers from setting up child-care plans.

Some employers have salary-reduced plans. In short, you agree to reduce your taxable plan by, say, $5,000.

The $5,000 is key for child care expenses, and she doesn't have to pay income or Social Security tax on that amount. Since Kate would be laying out that amount for child care in any event, she is, of course, much better off paying with tax-free dollars than with after-tax dollars.

Let's look at another example. Rachel's company pays $3,000 of child care expenses. Rachel has to pay $1,800 in addition for care of her two children. In 1988, she gets the $3,000 tax-free and the full 20 percent tax credit on the $4,800. So that's $960 in her pocket.

In 1989, it's a whole new ball game. The $3,000 you get from your employer wipes out $3,000 of the amount available for the credit. So Kate would have only $1,800 available — and 20 percent of that is $360. You just lost $600 in taxes.

Under that same Welfare Reform Act, children who are 13 or over will not be eligible under the child-care rules. And that's a killer. Consider that if you have two children, each of whom affects employer plans. Why? Because the same eligibility rules apply.

Remember, for 1988, the age is 13. What makes it even more absurd is that under the "kiddie tax" rules, investment income of a 13-year-old is taxed at the parent's rate. In that case, the cutoff age is 14.

More businesses, shoppers let computers do the talking

By Sylvia Porter,

An increasing number of Americans are using computers to gather information and make purchases. Taking advantage of "on-line services," they are permitting computer terminals to do the talking for them. This is just the beginning.

While on-line services such as CompuServe, Genie, Dow Jones and Company and the Source have been around for years, subscriptions to these services have been limited. The largest, CompuServe, has fewer than 500 subscribers.

For a monthly fee plus sometimes hefty per-hour charges, on-line companies provide everything from wire service reports to personal electronic mailboxes where information can be transmitted almost instantly. A writer in New York, for instance, could copy via computer to a local telephone center. His publisher in California also could dial a local number just a few minutes later and receive a completed feed-back story.

But the process remains expensive. Computer hobbyists have sought to circumvent this by developing systems such as FIDO. Mail is transmitted messages and information from user to user group. The messages are transmitted in bundles, with maybe a dozen messages being banded forth between two locations in a minute's time, thus reducing the cost per message. The downside is the lack of privacy and, in most cases, less than perfect reliability.

Now a third kind of on-line service has evolved, and it promises to be the most advanced of the big on-line businesses with a much lower cost, a little more than you would pay for the FIDO network.

The best known of these services is called Prodigy. It is a joint venture between IBM and Sears, Roebuck and Co. You may not have heard of it yet, but you will.

Prodigy went on-line last year, in a few test markets. Right now it is available only in Atlanta, Hartford, Conn., and San Jose, Calif., cities. But plans call for continued expansion this year and in years to come.

Unlike the earlier on-line services, Prodigy does not charge by the hour. Instead, for a $9.95 monthly charge, customers (the company calls them "members") have unlimited access to the service.

What do they receive? News and sports information, of course, and electronic mailboxes — though Prodigy does not allow "downloading" that is, copying its files into your computer.

A major Wall Street firm has signed on with Prodigy so its customers can conduct securities transactions via their home computers. An insurance firm added its reservation service to the system and a supermarket chain even lets you use your computer to order groceries which will be delivered at a specific time. There are computer games and entertainment features.

IBM and Sears say they are both saving money on their advertising campaign costing more than $40 million. The companies clearly expect the venture to become nearly as common as the telephone in many areas of the country.

Prodigy isn't the only service of its kind. Tandy Corp. has offered, for several months, a service called "Link" that offers many of the services provided by Prodigy, the system also allows you to download files for later use. It can send a big volume in telephone charges because computers can absorb information far more quickly than you can read it. PC-Link also offers unlimited access to the Internet, but there are a few catches: There is a surcharge for daytime use, and some services cost extra.

Other companies also offer or plan to start up various on-line services. Rising numbers of consumers will be discovering a whole new way of shopping, getting information, getting news. But it will not come without cost. Phone bills will be unexpectedly high in many homes, and some users are likely to miss the personal interaction that comes from going to the store, newsstand or library.

Still, it is something you only dreamed of a few years ago. Today, it is here and at prices likely to make the computer hook-up a common sight in more and more American homes.

Two new classes covered by 1988 Fair Housing Act

By Ellen O'Brien
President, Real Estate Board Of Metropolitan St. Louis

Fair Housing Amendments Act of 1988 made several changes to the housing market, the most notable being the addition of protected classes based on race and ethnicity.

Fair housing covers the unit becoming effective March 1989. Under the present law, the law exempts certain types of housing projects for the elderly from the requirement to accommodate children. These two classes join race, color, religion, sex and national origin.

The provision in the bill became effective March 1989. It signed the legislation, except for the handicapped adaptability requirement for new multifamily construction, which becomes effective 30 months after the signing.

Handicapped provisions: The legislation extends coverage to both the physically and mentally handicapped. It excludes people who currently use or are addicted to an illegal controlled substance and those who have been convicted of the manufacture or distribution of illegal drugs.

An owner is not required to provide a dwelling to any person whose tenancy would distract them from the health, safety and welfare of others. The landlord or owner cannot ask the applicant questions that would require the applicant to waive his rights to confidentiality concerning his medical condition or history.

The legislation allows the landlord to make reasonable modifications to existing units at their expense, but no modification would be allowed unless the

Condo lease-option offers advantages

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I am considering placing our condominium up for lease or an option. Are there any guidelines in use to establish how much of the monthly lease applies to the purchase option? Are there any hidden dangers in such an arrangement? Can you tell me where I can find a sample contract, other than a lawyer?

A.D.

Answer: Like acupuncture as a cure for headaches, the use of the lease-option to sell hard-to-move residential property has both supporters and detractors. Properly used, though, the lease-option can be a valuable tool for both buyer and seller.

For the buyer, the device lets him "lock in" a unit that he wants to buy while he gets his finances in shape. The seller is generating a cash flow, assuming the rent and will normally draw on the open market from tenant who has a real incentive for keeping the place in good shape.

There are some potential pitfalls, as there are in virtually every real estate transaction and you probably could get some advice from a real estate broker who has had some experience with lease-options on a flat-fee basis.

The one tricky aspect of the lease-option is that most practitioners feel leave too many loose ends to be 100 percent practical can be knotty. Consider this: If the buyer租了 his house about 5 percent to 10 percent above the price it would command in today's market and will allocate about half the first year's rent toward the down payment.

That means the exact price, the down payment, the amount of the rental payments applicable to the down payment, and how much if any, will be paid by the buyer.

The business of projecting what your condo will be worth on the market one or two years down the road (lease-options extending beyond that) most practitioners feel leave too many loose ends to be 100 percent practical can be knotty. Consider this: If the buyer租了 his house about 5 percent to 10 percent above the price it would command in today's market and will allocate about half the first year's rent toward the down payment.

But a lease-option has the advantage of being extremely flexible in such matters. You really will need some guidance in writing both the lease portion of the contract and the purchase portion and that requires a real estate adviser is a better bet than a lawyer.

There are several standard lease-purchase option forms available through local stationers, but one of the best I've seen is "Residential Lease with Option to Purchase" (Form 106).

About real estate

By Don Campbell

which is produced by Professional Publishing Corp., 122 Paul Drive, San Rafael, Calif. 94903. Books there are sold in pads of 50 (for $8) it would be more practical to obtain your stationer to stock them and selling you one or two you will need.

You also will find a further, more detailed, description of how to go about lease-options in a book that probably is available at your local library. "The Smart Investor's Guide to Real Estate" (Crown Publishing) by Robert Bruss.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I am a retired air force colonel at 70 years old. We own a house that has a $35,000 mortgage and we are sold in pads of 50 (for $8) it would be more practical to obtain your stationer to stock them and selling you one or two you will need.

We have been wondering if perhaps we would be interested in buying a house for $100,000. We would realize enough interest to rent a home for $750 to $800 a month and the entire $23,000 income would be totally available to live even more comfortably. Does this sound reasonable?

J.G.

Answer: I can't really shoot any gaping holes in your idea although your investment estimate may be a little high. As I figure, it takes a conservative estimate of $100,000 to $140,000, you should net about $97,650 after paying off the mortgage and the broker's commission. Unless you already have used your $125,000 one-lifetime exclusion, the tax on gain again, you have no tax liability at all. And this invested (again conservatively) at, say, 8 percent would net you about $651 a month, which would not quite offset the $750 to $800 a month you foresee.

But if buying a house isn't a big thrill for you and if you know, for sure, you can get good housing at the rent projected and if that pension also provides adequately for you and your wife, I can't really see any problem with your idea.

FSLIC savings bank safe place for money

By Bob Hardcastle

Many investors are concerned about the certificates of deposit they have in savings and loans.

Don't worry, you have the FSLIC.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. protection is 100 percent guaranteed and backed by the U.S. government. The FSLIC insures each account up to $100,000.

Make sure the institution is protected by the FSLIC. If you're not sure, just ask. Most savings and loans have FSLIC protection, but many credit unions do not.

Even if you have more than $100,000 and wish to invest in CDs in a savings and loan, there should be no problem doing so. The maximum amount can be put in an account with a different name or in account with the same name and another such as a mother, husband, wife, son or daughter.

Or you can simply make a deposit in a different savings and loan that has FSLIC protection. The FSLIC also will insure that account to the maximum.

The government threw up a trial balloon a couple of weeks ago testing the patience of investors. The question was: "Should investors pay for investing in savings and loans?"

Years ago the safest place to put your savings dollars were banks and savings and loans. It is amazing that today many people question those institutions. Beware of the changes that soon will occur.

How to handle lump-sum? One idea 'rollover power'

By Bob Hardcastle

Ever since people getting ready to retire or change jobs ask me what to do with their lump-sum distribution.

Rollover power is my answer.

I call it rollover power because I think that in most cases rolling the money into an IRA will be the best alternative. In many cases, taking the lump-sum distribution or a partial distribution from a qualified retirement program and transferring it into an IRA can help more than five or 10 years income tax averaging would have.

Many people believe they can put only $100 a year themselves, or $2,250 a year with a non-working spouse, into an IRA. That will keep the money in the IRA until the year before it is rolled over. The IRA will be considered ordinary income in the year received. In an IRA, distributions can be made at any time in any amount after age 59½. The money can be taken out of the IRA before the age of 59½ and taxes charged. Remember that the individual gets a partial distribution from his retirement program five or 10 years averaging cannot be used.

Not all of the proceeds need to be rolled over into the IRA. That portion he does not need to roll over will be considered ordinary income in the year received. In an IRA, distributions can be made at any time in any amount after age 59½. The money can be taken out of the IRA before the age of 59½ and taxes charged. Remember that the individual gets a partial distribution from his retirement program five or 10 years averaging cannot be used.

War declared on polio plus other diseases of childhood

Would I write a sales pitch in this column for the 1989 Rotary? "All you can eat" chili day Tuesday, March 21, at Niedringhaus Methodist Church, 10th Street and Delmar Avenue? "The one where chili will be served from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and from 5 to 7 p.m.?"

Not. But one line on the $3.50 ticket, which conveniently in my shirt pocket for easy distribution did catch my eye: "All proceeds go toward PolioPlus."

IT WAS IN 1905 that Paul Harris formed the first Rotary club, in Chicago. I thought I'd better say that right away, since nostalgic columns are of interest to many people.

Rotary's centennial, as you can clearly see, is going to be in 2005. By then, Rotarians would like to have eradicated polio from the world throughout the world.

What does "plus" mean in PolioPlus? It means polio plus all the other childhood diseases that can be prevented with vaccines.

IT CAN BE DONE by the year 2005, the Rotarians plus members of Rotary International's 20,000-plus clubs worldwide believe. Will it achieve it sooner than that, if they can. But the task, unfortunately, can't be done overnight.

"Throwing money" at a problem doesn't always succeed, says Rotarian, finding that money plus dedication and voluntary effort can bring miracles in the cause of good health.

The 1988 RI convention, held in Atlanta, marked a victory party marking the success of the service organization's basic PolioPlus drive for $120 million. Receipts and pledges had reached $219 million.

$240 MILLION has now been raised, Irvin State Jr. announced at Tuesday's Granite City Rotary luncheon at the YMCA as he installed new club members.

"We're celebrating a historic moment in the lives of the world's children," Irvin said. AI Charles Keller told a wildly cheering throng of 16316 from 102 nations, it was related from The Rotarian magazine.

The Rotarian magazine's theme for the Philadelphia activities was "Rotarians United in Service and Dedicated to Peace," an objective well served by the international child health project.

THE MEETING LASTED five days and the Tuesday of convention week was given over to the PolioPlus project.

Lee Wright, chairman of the International PolioPlus Campaign Committee, told the gathering that "today, in some nameless village, a child greeted me and I went home knowing the night before passed him over because he was immunized. Today, 75 families are not mourning the loss of a child to polio."

Today, 750 children are not among the world's crawlers and are walking, running and playing because of the Rotarians of the world. That's what we're celebrating," he said.

Terri Martin, whose cookbook has raised $90,000 for PolioPlus.

Governments of several countries which gave grants of millions of dollars.

The U.S. Agency for International Development which granted the largest gift of $6 million.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO we were only able to talk about controlling polio," Wright said. "Now we're sportsmen agree that eradication is possible."

We've already immunized 110 million children. We've changed the course of history. We will be even stronger in our ability to affect human events much more certain.

PolioPlus has given us the confidence to dare to be greater than we ever could before.

United in service dedicated to peace — and willing to brew up a big batch of chili to help pay for healthier life for young people everywhere.

Legislators criticize sales tax law

The Southwestern Illinois Council of Mayors met in Belleville with state senators and representatives to discuss issues ranging from taxes to the joint use of Scott Air Force Base.

Four members of the General Assembly were present: Rep. Sam Watson, D-Glen Carbon; Frank Watson, R-Carlyle; Rep. Monroe Flinn, D-Cahokia; and Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-DuQuoin.

Watson echoed the feelings of many of the mayors by demanding that changes be made to law passed by the state last summer. The law will create new income by taxing photo processing and expanding the tax base to cover more out-of-state sales.

But it has drawn criticism because it has also changed the method through which cities and counties collect their monthly sales tax receipts.

The state now is to appropriate funds rather than pass them back to the various entities.

"This was a provision we knew nothing about; none of us are in favor of the proposal as it stands and you can rest assured we will do everything we can to amend it as it is amended," said Watson.

He had an attempt to amend the law failed in the last session, but he expects another attempt in this spring's session.

At the meeting, Tom Fitzsimmons of the Illinois Municipal League said there are negotiations between Gov. James Thompson's office and the House over the sales tax payment issue, adding that House Majority Leader Jim McPhee, D-Alton, philosophical, believes that state revenue should go through the appropriation process.

In an unrelated tax issue, SIUE President Earl Lazerson urged an income tax increase for education, corrections and law enforcement, veterans' services, mental health and Medicaid providers (nursing homes and hospitals).

Watson said those areas are "grossly underfunded when it comes to providing benefits and services."

Dunn said people in his area are concerned about the proposed expansion of Scott Air Force Base, adding that even though there are groups and individuals opposed to the expansion, it would be to the benefit of Southern Illinois to allow the joint-use (civilian and military) plan.

Watson said his two top priorities in this session are to see the completion of development of the Eastport Plaza in Collinsville and solving traffic problems in the Fairview Heights area near St. Clair Square.

issue of a tax increase for education as long as the speaker of the house was against it.

"Maybe he (Thompson) has a game plan we don't know about," said Dunn, "and most of the time we don't know what the game plan is."

Watson said he would support a tax increase in the income tax if it went to five specific areas of need — financial aid for education, corrections, and law enforcement, veterans' services, mental health and Medicaid providers (nursing homes and hospitals).

Post 113 to celebrate 70th

"Our organization was responsible for the creation of the G.I. Bill of Rights used by millions of veterans to obtain assistance in education and home loans," Weathers said.

Deterding

The life & times of a basketball coach

'Hardest decision ever' a fortuitous one for GC

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — You're 33 years old. You've established yourself as a successful basketball coach at a school which before your arrival had experienced no hardware success. You've just taken the team to the final 16 of the state tournament. And the team is made up entirely of juniors.

You're not going anywhere. Or are you?

That was the scenario one spring day in 1967 as Don Deterding and several others of his players came to Effingham (Ill.) High School. Deterding had inherited a floundering Flaming Heart program in 1961 and had gone 6-20 in his first season. But Effingham was 3-22 in 1967, and the next five years and in 1967 was 28-2, advancing all the way to the Charleston Super-Sectional where Vergil Fletcher and the Collinsville Kahoks beat Deterding 59-48.

But all of the Flaming Hearts' players were returning the next year. There was no reason for Deterding to leave. But as he played cards that day, he got a phone call from Dick Yates, then the athletic director at Granite City. The Warriors needed a new coach and asked Deterding to come for an interview.

"I jokingly told my athletic director that he would need to look for a new basketball coach," said Deterding. "It was no joke. Leaving Effingham "was the hardest decision I ever made," Deterding said. But for Deterding, an all-around athlete who won a High School in 1952, the Southwestern Conference was the place to be.

Don Deterding travelled a long and winding road before landing in Granite City in June 1967. Perhaps that explains why he decided to stay around so long. The road began on June 6 when Deterding packs his belongings and heads for Willow Springs, Mo., to a 360-acre farm. Deterding will turn 50 on April 7, is retiring after 22 years in the Granite City school system. He spent 19 of those years as the head basketball coach at Granite City and Granite City South high schools. He compiled a 250-243 record here with three regional titles and one sectional crown. He finished with a career record of 450-346 overall of coaching. He has outlasted at least two and as many as four coaches at all the other SWC schools.

This is the earliest I could retain and collect my full pension," Deterding said just days after his final season ended at 7-19 with a surprisingly close loss to Southwestern in regional action. "I've been very happy here and it's been a very enjoyable 22 years."

Deterding took the 1971 Warriors by former Ripke and Mike DeRuntz, to the Charleston Super-Sectional. He earned shared conference titles in 1972, 1983 and 1986 for a school which until my sophomore year in 1940 and has only won six in its history.

Conference titles were very important to Deterding, who lost about half the SWC very early in life from one of the conference's most legendary figures.

I came from a very non-sporting family," said Deterding, who had three older sisters growing up in Collinsville. "My parents (William and Laura) never saw a basketball game until my sophomore year in high school. They wouldn't let me play because I had work to do on the farm."

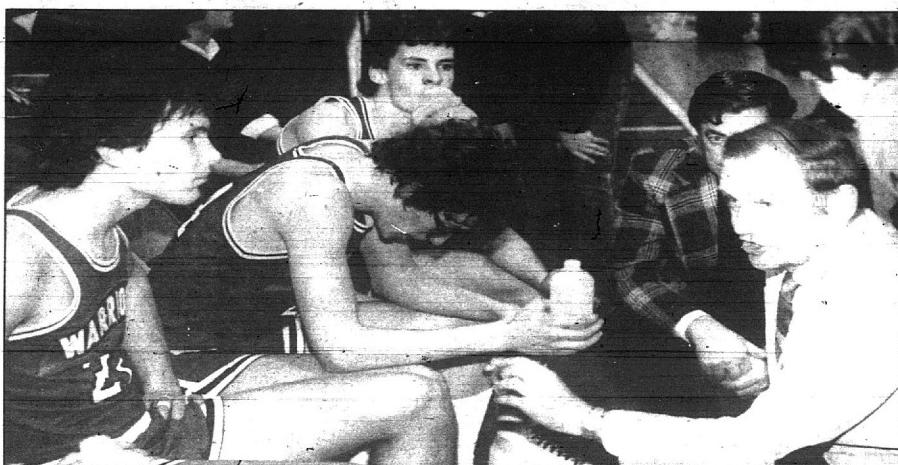

Vergil Fletcher saw me in P.E. class and wanted me to play. My parents said no until Deterding to come home and work. But eventually they became avid fans.

Deterding was an excellent shooter as a 6-1 center-forward. As a senior in 1951-52, he became the first Kahok to average more than 20 points as he averaged 20.6 and led Fletcher's team to a 21-4 record. They were No. 1 in the state for six weeks before losing 71-70 to Madison in the state final.

"One of my sisters had gone to college and I started out in conservation, but I got a C in my first chemistry class and decided it wasn't for me." He got his first job at Mineral Hill High School in the fall of 1957 — humble beginnings, to be sure.

"There were 34 students in the school," said Deterding, "who were only 21 at the time. I did everything, including drive the bus. I remember we won five of the first seven games and I thought I was ready to be the Celtics' coach. But then we started to struggle."

Deterding was 7-17 that year and got the coaching job in Dexter, Mo., the next year, thanks to Ralph Pink, his coach at started. He saw the talent that the good Lord had blessed me with. And as much as I respect Ed [Fletcher] as a coach, I always respected him more as a man."

Deterding went to Michigan State, but he left a few months before his father suffered a heart attack and Don had to come home to help on the farm.

I knew I was the worst guard up there (Michigan St.), but I worked hard and was able to start the only freshman game I was there for," he said.

He returned home to Effingham before enrolling at Ventura (Calif.) Junior College in January 1954. Deterding became an all-state junior college player before transferring to Southern Illinois University, where he received his degree in physical education and social studies in 1957.

One of my sisters had gone to college and I started out in conservation, but I got a C in my first chemistry class and decided it wasn't for me."

He got his first job at Mineral Hill High School in the fall of 1957 — humble beginnings, to be sure.

"There were 34 students in the school," said Deterding, "who were only 21 at the time. I did everything, including drive the bus. I remember we won five of the first seven games and I thought I was ready to be the Celtics' coach. But then we started to struggle."

Deterding was 7-17 that year and got the coaching job in Dexter, Mo., the next year, thanks to Ralph Pink, his coach at SEMO. He was 6-19 the first year, but 18-10 and 22-6 the next two years. He took his team to the state tournament in 1961 where he lost by four points to Bill Bradley and Crystal City.

"But I wanted to get back into Illinois," he said of his return to take the Effingham job that year. "They had never won a conference title or anything. We were able to win three conference titles and two sectionals in my six years. And I quickly found out that good players make a good coach."

The 1967 team featured Roger Arnold, who went on to play at the University of Minnesota. But Arnold broke his arm in the sectional finals, an overtime victory over Evansville. The Flaming Hearts led by eight points when Arnold was hurt and barely hung on, then lost to none other than Fletcher's Kahoks in the Super-Sectional.

The decision to leave Effingham was "the hardest decision I ever had to make," Deterding said.

We had a motto that year, 'Keep the Faith, Baby,' he said. "And we went on vacation and returned to see a 4x3-foot piece of plywood on our porch that said 'Stick with us' and 'Keep the Faith, Baby.'

"But this is where I wanted to be. At that time, the Southwest Conference was the elite conference in the country. It was tough to leave the Flaming Hearts, whose senior-dominated squad went 31-1, losing 85-52 to Greenville in the state tournament in 1968 under new coach Jim Maxdon, who is still at Effingham. But as he had done at Dexter and Effingham, Deterding quickly turned around a struggling program in Granite City.

After going 10-15 in 1968, the Warriors went 21-6 in 1969 behind the play of Gary Simpson and John Venable. But Van Buskirk suffered a sprained ankle late in the year which Deterding feels prevented the team from bigger things.

Gene Maravich was the greatest player I ever coached," Deterding said. "He was a 6-1 guard and very quick. He was the only player I ever coached who could have played professionally."

But Simpson's story was a tragic one. He went to LSU and averaged 37 points on the freshman team (freshmen were eligible to play varsity in those days), which is more than Pete Maravich averaged as a freshman. Simpson was selected when Simpson was a freshman. Simpson started on the varsity as a sophomore and averaged 18 points and LSU coach Press Maravich, Pete's dad, was ready to promote him for All-American honors as a junior.

Bruce Simpson's life became unravelled "because of drugs and some other things," Deterding said. Simpson died of cancer in 1985.

The Warriors were 22-9 in 1971 and advanced to the Charleston Super-Sectional. Deterding had Ripka, whom Deterding rated as the second-best player he coached and who is the leading scorer in Warrior history.

"Paris just ripped us (74-48) followed by Jeff Gray and Tim Hogan in the background. Assistant coach Jack Parker is behind Deterding.

in that game." Deterding said of the super-sectional. "They left with the plane of Gary Simpson and John Venable. But we just couldn't hit his shots. He scored around 20 points, but he could have had 30 or 35."

After taking a share of the Southwestern Conference title in 1971-72 with Belleville West and winning 18-7, Deterding had an attack of inflammation around the heart in the fall of 1972 and decided to go to the 1973-74 season following a 22-9 season in 1972-73.

He became the athletic director at the new Granite City North High School in the fall of 1973, returning to that position for three years. Bill Oehlendorf, after several successful seasons at Venette, was the Steelhead coach while Bryan Wilkinson co-coached.

"I enjoyed being an athletic director," Deterding said. "But it was tough being around basketball and not actually being involved in the game and competing." And I was assured the heart trouble had nothing to do with the stress of coaching."

He exchanged jobs with Wilkinson and became the coach at Collinsville High School for the 1976-77 season (Oehlendorf remained the North coach until the school closed in 1983. He and Wilkinson both later became assistants to Deter-ding). There followed some lean seasons, although the Warriors won 18-8 in 1978-79 with Jeff Parker.

"There were real stars on that team," Deterding said. "Ed [Gray] played hard."

The Warriors would return to prominence until 1984-85 when the two high schools were merged again. A pair of brother combinations who otherwise would have been rivals resurfaced. Jeff Gray's rainbow jump shots gave the Warriors plenty of scoring as they went 18-9 and tied Collinsville for the conference title. And then came 1985-86.

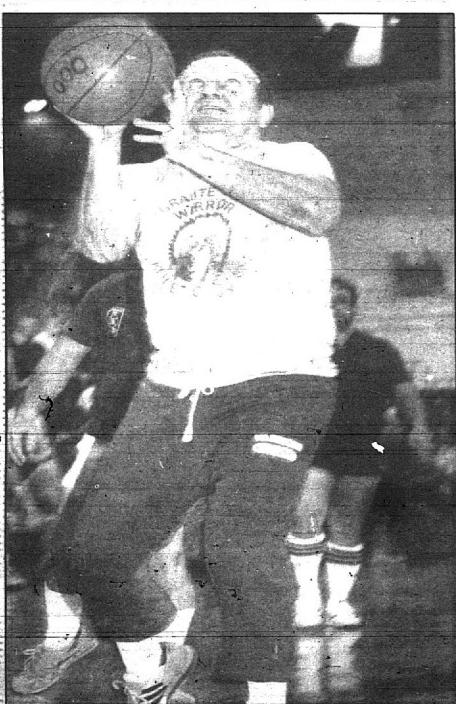

"That was the second best team I ever had behind the one at Effingham (1967)," Deterding said.

The '85-'86 Warriors were led by the fierce competitiveness of Jeff Gray's brother Joe and a pair of unlikely-looking basketball players who happened to be twin brothers.

"I never saw kids who dominated the athletic scene like the Hogans. Jamie and Tom [Gray] were all-conference performers in football, basketball and baseball."

THE PLAYER: Deterding is known as a coach, but he also played the game. He looked a little different playing in a charity game two years ago (left) than he did as an all-state player at Collinsville High School in 1952.

Congratulations to Red

At last it's happened. Albert "Red" Schoenfeld has been elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

In his 19 years in the major leagues (1945-63), Red hit a steady .289, and drove in 773 runs. His lifetime home runs: 78 triples and 427 doubles. Only eight other National Leagues racked up more two-base hits than the Redhead. All but five of his years were with the Cardinals.

He played in St. Louis from 1945-55 and was a member of the 1946 world champions. Schoenfeld played one season with the Giants, three seasons in Milwaukee where he helped the Braves win one World Series (1957) and one other National League pennant (1958). He returned to St. Louis and finished his career in 1963. Mainly a second baseman, Red also played some shortstop and outfield.

The Germantown, Ill., native was one of a series of great second basemen the Cardinals have had, a group that includes Rogers Hornsby and Frankie Frisch. Although not as tall as a latter-day Red, Red led the league in stolen bases with 29 in 1945. He was a great glove man, leading National League second basemen in fielding six times.

My first meeting with the Redhead came in the spring of 1945, the last year the Cardinals held spring training in Cairo, Ill. I was then the sports editor of the Evening Citizen both as a reporter and a back shop man on the press. All three St. Louis dailies covered the Cardinals during the week, but their reporters left Cairo as early as possible on Friday to be with their families on the weekend.

Schoenfeld reported in 1945 after spending four years in the Cardinal system. He was originally signed by Branch Rickey in 1942.

Last in spring training, I got a seat from Sid Keener, the sports editor of the St. Louis Star-Tribune, and I sat next to Schoenfeld that Friday night at the Cairo Hotel and do a story on him and file it for the Monday paper.

"As far as I could, I took up a position in the lobby and started my vigil at around 3 p.m. Around 7 p.m., with no Schoenfeld, I began to think that maybe he had given me misinformation. But then a very thin young man approached the heavy door and it was obvious he needed help opening it. I put my key inside the door and added my weight to Red's and opened the door."

Red stayed with the Cardinals and there followed many great years as a player. Later as the manager, managed the Cardinals longer than anyone (42 years), with two pennants and one world championship.

Congratulations, Red. It couldn't have happened to a sweeter guy.

Select soccer tryouts in Collinsville this weekend

The Olympic Development Program will be holding final tryouts for the Southern Illinois select soccer teams this weekend. Players will be selected for five teams, ages 13½, 14½, 15½, 16½ and 17½.

Tryouts will be held at the JC Sports Complex, located at Illinois 15 and Old Collinsville Road. On March 10, tryouts for the 16½ team are at 4 p.m., with the 17½ tryouts at 5:30 p.m. On March 11, tryouts

Deterding

Taylor and Chris Veizer led the Warriors to a 25-4 record, a share of the conference title with the Larry Smith-led Alton Redbirds and a regional title.

"There are two games that stand out in my career," Deterding said. "The sectional title win Effingham had over Lawrenceville was one, and that 88-80 game with Alton (Jan. 24, 1986) was the other. That was the good team going up and down the court all night. And our gym was packed."

The Warriors made it to the semis from Siloam before losing 71-56 to East St. Louis Lincoln. Granite City was 17-9 in 1986-87 — the Hogans' and Taylor's senior year — and missed out on another berth in the conference crown when last-place Belleville West beat them.

"We lost some games we should have won," Deterding said. "The game with West and the one at Collinsville were very tough to take."

It was about then Deterding announced he would retire after giving his mother his information. But then a very thin young man approached the heavy door and it was obvious he needed help opening it. I put my key inside the door and added my weight to Red's and opened the door."

Deterding said, "But we just didn't shoot well."

Deterding also coached the women's volleyball team the last three years, going 37-41, a record which included 10 forfeit losses last year because of the teachers strike. The highrating team of Wendy Kuhlmann and Co. went 22-7 and won its regional.

"I did it because my daughter told me she knew a sport after watching them play," Deterding said. "I was unsure at first, but I was glad I did it."

Deterding had four daughters from his first marriage, Robbie, 30, now an M.D. in Springfield (she is the only all-state volleyball player ever produced in Granite City); getting the honor at South High, Terry, 28, is a teacher in St. Louis; and Deterding's only grandchild, Lori, 24, is a nurse in Aurora, Ill.; and Dawn, 23, is a student at UMSL.

He has three stepchildren with his wife of four years, Dee Rich Dimock, 24, of Granite City; Tracy Davis, 27, of Troy; and Kenny, 12, who is waiting with Dee at the Willow Springs farm.

"Kenny wants to play basketball and football, and I will encourage that if he wants it."

Deterding is currently living with his mother, now 93, in Collinsville. His father passed away in 1971.

"She's in pretty good health, but she wonders why I can't win basketball games anymore," he said.

Deterding would like to get a teaching or coaching job in Missouri. It won't affect his pension from Illinois.

"If the right situation comes up, I'll take it," he said. "I like basketball, but I was fortunate enough to walk into a program that was a proven winner. I might like to see if I can do it again."

"I also wouldn't mind teaching P.E. at a junior high. I know I can prepare kids for high school athletics. But I could never be an assistant coach. I never won an NBA championship."

Deterding knows he's leaving a program which has possibilities of improvement in the next couple of years, with another pair of wings freshen up Jeff and Brian Smith, who both could grow to be 6-9. There are two other 6-3 freshman also.

"They will need a point guard," he says. "This should be a real nice club in 2-3 years. I'm pleased to be able to leave some talent."

The administration and everyone has been very good to me. I've lived a full life in Granite City. I went through a divorce, but most everything else has been good here. I never regretted leaving Effingham."

And certainly no one in Granite City regretted it, either.
